

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is Healthful

Because it is brewed from Pabst Eight-Day Malt and choicest hops.

Malt is made from barley—the most nourishing of all grains.

The Pabst Eight-Day Malt Process gets all of these nourishing properties out of the barley-grain, and the Pabst Brewing Methods retain them all in.

Pabst Blue Ribbon
The Beer of Quality

Notice to the Farmers of Texas.
The law creating the office of the Commissioner of Agriculture, says: "He" (the Commissioner of Agriculture) "shall encourage the organization of agricultural societies, and for the benefit of the agricultural communities, he shall cause to be held farmers' institutes at such times and at such places throughout the State as will best promote the advancement of agricultural knowledge and the improvement of agricultural methods and practices."

The law also provides that the Commissioner "shall co-operate with the Agricultural and Mechanical College in all lines looking towards the agricultural and horticultural interests of the State."

In this connection, it affords me pleasure to announce that this department is now ready to proceed with the work of organizing farmers' institutes, and I am sure that it will be gratifying to the farmers of Texas to know that one of the ablest and most experienced men in the agricultural South will be supplied by the A. & M. College, to be present and talk to the farmers at all these meetings. As it will be impossible to visit more than a number of counties between now and January, only those counties will be included in said visits which will make application for the same. It is expected that some live farmer at each place, desiring institutes, shall take the lead, secure the names of at least a dozen farmers and forward them to me at Austin immediately, so that the appointments can be made in such a way as to avoid any conflict.

It is the duty of those petitioning for these meetings to advertise them in their local papers and to give publicity to them in such manner as they may select; also, to choose local speakers and arrange generally for the meetings. Several petitions have already been received, asking for the organization of institutes, and it is important that all such petitions be sent in with the next two weeks. In counties where agricultural societies are already in existence, such as truck-growing associations, etc., the work will continue in the names already adopted. It is the purpose of this department, working in absolute harmony with the A. & M. College, to serve the best interests of the great mass of farmers, stock raisers, truck-growers, etc., of this State. But there must be a live local interest to make these institutes a moving force in agriculture. In getting up these petitions for institutes, form is necessary; any method which will convey to this department a desire for institute work will be sufficient.

Com. of Agriculture, Austin, Tex.

The Steel Pen.
Long years ago when writing first came into use the people of the East used the styles, a piece of pointed metal or bone.

The true beginning of the pen among civilized nations was made from reed. The people of Persia and other eastern countries still use them. After the reed pen came the quill obtained from the wings of the goose or from the swan or crow.

The Chinese and Japanese write with a small brush or hair pencil. Our metal pen has not been in use over a hundred years, and was not used very much until the last fifty years.

The metal used for making pens consists of rolled sheet of cast steel of the finest quality. These sheets are cut into strips of a suitable width. They are first given a bath in sulphuric acid, then rolled between steel rollers until they become the thickness of a pen. They are then cut into the right shape and pierced with a hole.

Then they are marked with the maker's name, bent into a rounded form, plunged into oil and placed over a fire until they become a blue color and elastic. They are polished by being turned in huge cylinders, partly filled with sand. After being polished, slit, varnished and having the point ground, they are ready for use.

Great care must be taken to make the slit in the point exact or the pen will not be perfect. The city of Birmingham, England, makes two million pens every week. The United States makes more gold pens than any other country. She sells $2,000,000 worth each year. The gold pen has to through forty-two processes before being fit for use. We do not make as many steel pens as we used to, but send to England for one half million gross every year.
